

THE NEST: CREATING EQUITY IN EDUCATION

A free PILAglobal presentation about hope for children who are denied access to education because of poverty, persecution and displacement.

All children depend on learning environments that embrace them as capable, creative thinkers. Such learning environments are rich in play and prioritize choice, voice and collaboration. Unfortunately, children experiencing trauma and poverty are the least likely to have access to such environments.

PILAglobal has created “Nests” on three continents to serve children who would otherwise be denied access to education due to poverty, persecution or displacement. These Nests provide a working, on-the-ground pedagogical model that relies on child-led inquiry, questioning, creativity, and dignity.

They offer a vision of how to educate for democracy – a counterbalance to the rigid, rote learning style of education that is often relegated to underserved communities.

This free 50-minute presentation is designed for college classes, community groups, clubs, church groups, and professional organizations.

“That was AMAZING. I was overcome with that combination of heartbreak and inspiration that makes me as passionate as ever about this important work—had a lump in my throat pretty much the whole time—and I know you had a HUGE impact on my students!”

Alise's presentation was incredibly poignant. "Nothing without joy" kept coming back to me. That phrase took on new meaning for me this evening as I thought about the children that are served by the Nests.”
